Lynn Davis

Allied Health Professor and Department Chair

White Mountains Community College

Professor Lynn Davis, Department Chair of Allied Health, promotes public and community service that develops true students' citizenship skills; she helps White Mountains Community College form effective community partnerships across many discipline areas, and provides resources and training for faculty seeking to integrate civic and community-based learning into the curriculum. Beyond her regular duties, Lynn's involvement with North Country Health Consortium in Littleton, NH, has led to a $300,000 grant for student scholarships. This grant covers 100% tuition costs for LNAs, MNAs and an Advocate Certificate in the Health and Wellness degree program. Lynn makes civic and community engagement a priority, which has benefited our students' education and WMCC programs. Her efforts continue to strengthen surrounding communities and educate the next generation of responsible citizens.
