Nathan Wells

White Mountains Community College

Nathan is a young man of many talents and is actively involved in his community. His quiet manner and friendly smile help create a positive environment in the WMCC Academic Support Center, which is important for student success.

As a work study student he organized our peer tutor program. He works as a tutor, and supports overwhelmed students by finding them the help they need. He also recruits peer tutors as needed from the staff or faculty at WMCC.

Without his involvement, the students seeking support may have walked away from the college. His ability to work with diverse learners while producing his own work with high-quality performance is remarkable.

He leads the youth choir at his church and is actively involved in the life of a young child in need of a male role model. He is a talented musician and shares his music with the children in the WMCC Child Development Center.
