

PRESIDENTS' COMMUNITY PARTNER AWARD

RIVERSTONE

A FAIRFAX COMPANY

Riverstone Resources, LLC New Hampshire Institute of Art

RiverStone has emerged as a major supporter of arts and cultural activities in the greater Manchester community in addition to their ongoing support of many social services causes, most notably the New Hampshire Food Bank. Their support is often anonymous and goes unnoticed by the community at large, as they prefer to keep a low profile and let their support speak for itself.

RiverStone has been an invaluable partner of the New Hampshire Institute of Art (NHIA) by helping the college renovate the former St. Anne's Church in Manchester as a new Youth Arts Center that will eventually serve annually over 250 Manchester-based teens as well as provide a home for the college's expanding arts education program. RiverStone has also assisted the college with operating support for the Youth Arts program while we have waited for renovations on the former church to be completed and the new facility to open this fall.

RiverStone CEO Nick Bentley has felt so strongly about the work NHIA is now doing to improve the Manchester community he joined the Board of Trustees of the college in the fall of 2016. As Nick has said repeatedly in relation to RiverStone's long-standing support of the New Hampshire Food Bank and their more recent support of various arts and educational initiatives: "it's important for businesses to realize that we need to feed people's minds and souls, not just their stomachs."
